CANADA'S NATAL DAY.

How the Twentieth Anniversary of Confederation was Observed.

Athletic Sports, Excursions, Picnics and Loyal Demonstrations.

Yesterday the twentieth anniversary of the birth of Confederation was observed in Victoria as a holiday and spent by most of our citizens by taking a run into the country. With a large number of picnics in all parts of the surrounding country there was no lack of entertainment and it is reasonable to assume that the day was spent pleasantly by all. The city would have appeared almost deserted during the day had it not been for the large display of gay colored bunting and the number of hacks and buggies to be seen hurrying to the suburbs with their loads of pleasure seekers. At 12:30 a salute was fired from Finlayson point battery by a detachment of the B. C. G. A.

METHODIST SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

The Sunday school children of the Methodist Church and their parents and friends held their annual picnic at Duncan's station on the line of the E. & N. railway. About 600 were present, who were conveyed thither in ten picnic and regular passenger coaches, the ride back and forth from Russell's station being delightful. The picnic grounds were very suitable, though possibly better could have been selected in the locality. The company enjoyed themselves with fishing and various sports during the day and returned to the city about 9 o'clock in the evening, delighted with the day's outing.

PRESBYTERIAN SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

The annual day's outing of the Sunday school children of the Pandora street Presbyterian Church was held on the east side of Beacon Hill Park, where between two and three hundred parents and children were assembled.

Refreshments were provided in abundance and a pleasant day was spent by the children in frolicing through the park. The party returned to the city about 7 o'clock in the evening.

BAPTIST SUNDAY SCHOOL PICNIC.

The Baptist Sunday School children had their picnic at McNeill's Foul Bay, to which place they drove in McAdam's busses, leaving the city about 9 o'clock in the morning. Between 250 and 300 children and their friends formed the party. A delightful day was spent at the well-known picnic grounds and all returned home in the evening well satisfied with the day at the beach.

ATHLETIC CLUB PICNIC.

This gathering which has become an event in the annual picnic season took place at the Agricultural Grounds, Beacon Hill, which were nicely decorated and fixed up for the occasion. The number of spectators present was not as large as has been in the grounds on similar occasions, owing, of course, to the number and variety of attractions which drew people out of town and entertained them elsewhere. This, however, did not interfere with sports, which were carried out to the satisfaction of spectators as well as contestants. The contests were entered into with zest and contested in a spirited manner, the day being all that could be desired for such exercises. The acrobatic and horizontal bar exhibitions by Messrs. Weiler, Workman and Gouge, and the slack wire performance by Joseph Weiler were splendid exhibitions of athletic skill and were generously applauded by the spectators. The slack wire performance included a series of the difficult feats usually performed by "kings of the air," namely, sitting, lying, kneeling, swinging clubs, dumb bells &c., upon the wire. No professional could have done better. Altogether the sports were decidedly successful. The artillery band was present and discoursed good music during the day and also in the evening when a ball took place in the hall. This was largely attended and was kept up till about 2 o'clock this morning. The Committee of Management were: T Deasy, (president), J McIntyre, (secretary), J Gardiner, Chas Gardiner, (vice-president), G Shade, (financial secretary), F Gouge, (captain), F Golding.

Following are the list of prize winners in the day's sports:

SUPREME COURT.

Action for Libel Against Mr. D. W. Higgins, of the "Colonist."

(Before Sir M. B. Begbie, C. J.)

AFTER RECESS.

Thursday, June 30.—Mr. Davie produced several copies of the Colonist containing references to the plaintiff, which were again refused as evidence.

Counsel for the defence then proceeded to open his case. He claimed that it was necessary for the jury to enquire whether the article in question had been published with a view to vindicating the plaintiff and whether or not it had proved derogatory to him. As it had given the plaintiff an opportunity to set himself right before the world, counsel claimed that the publication of the report had not been prejudicial to him.

Mr. Drake pointed out that the intention of the publisher could not be considered. A man might publish a mischievous libel without intending that it should be, or knowing it to be, such. This, however, did not lessen the injury which it inflicted.

His Lordship said a miserable fellow had once published a scandalous libel concerning himself, and he had no doubt but the fellow thought he was doing all right. The great difference here was that men rushed into newspapers who scarcely knew their right hand from their left.

Counsel for the defence here submitted the deposition of S. P. Tuck, taken before a commission, which stated that he (the deponent) was in the Colonist editorial room the night preceding the publication of the alleged libelous article. Mr. Dunsmuir was also present. While we were sitting there Mr. Higgins said "listen to this," and he read the paragraph which appeared in the Colonist next morning. He dropped the paper on the desk saying "what a cursed shame that is." Deponent said that even Mr. Walkem's greatest political enemies admitted that he had made a good Judge. Mr. Dunsmuir said that he did not believe Mr. Walkem would do anything like that; that he was far too shrewd a man to put himself into anyone's power to such an extent. Deponent remarked, Mr. Walkem could not enter into a controversy with such a man as McNamee. Mr. Higgins said it would be enough that his simple denial be given. It would be worth a dozen of McNamee's oaths for Judge Walkem to simply deny the statement published in the Post.

Cornelius Booth, sworn—I am assessor and collector. I have never seen the copy of the Post produced. I saw what purported to be an extract from the Post published in the Colonist.

Mr. Drake said it did not purport to be an extract from the Post and objected to the evidence of this witness.

His Lordship held that the objection was well taken and the witness left the stand.

Robert Dunsmuir, sworn—Heard the evidence of Samuel Parker Tuck read. I remember the occasion referred to in the deposition. Mr. Tuck was there and I do not know whether one of the reporters was present or not. Mr. Higgins was writing at the desk. All at once he said "listen to this." He then read from a paper. I knew after that it was from the Post. I said you are not going to publish that. He said I do not see why I should not or Mr. Walkem will not have an opportunity to refute it. I said I suppose you think it will not be seen unless it is published in the Colonist. We all said including Mr. Higgins that we did not believe it. After hearing what Mr. Higgins intended to publish I did not consider it libelous and did not think it would do any harm.

Cross-examined by Mr. Drake—I remember speaking to Mr. Walkem in the government grounds concerning this matter. I did not state to him that I had told Mr. Higgins that if he published that article it would injure him (plaintiff). Our conversation was about another lie (laughter). I would like to tell you what that was, I did not say it would injure Mr. Walkem because I did not think so.

Mr. Davie asked leave to put in the deposition, Chas. W. Mitchell, proprietor of the Ottawa Free Press, and the shorthand reporter who had taken Mr. McNamee's evidence.

This closed the evidence for the defence.

Mr. Davie then addressed the jury. He said it was for them to say whether the publication of the article had been either injurious or malicious. If they would come to the conclusion that there was no desire to inflict injury on the plaintiff but notwithstanding injury had been done in that case, it would be their duty to give nominal damages, but when it is shown that there neither was a desire to injure nor had injury been done then not one cent of damages could be given, and that verdict he claimed at their hands.

Mr. Drake, addressing the jury said, although he did not intend speaking at length, there had been remarks made use of by the defence which could not be allowed to go uncontradicted. Whatever decision or resolution had been come to in Mr. Higgins' private office, had no relation or bearing on the case. The plaintiff was not suing for anything which had occurred anterior to the petition of the libel. What he did ask damages for was for the circulation of an injurious libel. It required a great deal of ingenuity to attempt to show that Mr. Higgins had given circulation to this libel for the benefit of Mr. Walkem. If he had been really anxious to do the plaintiff a good turn he would have sent a note to him and would have called his attention to what had been said about him in an abandoned sheet. It was, on the contrary, apparent that Mr. Higgins had published the libel for the purpose of compelling Mr. Walkem to deny it. In contradiction of what had been said about the conversation in Mr. Higgins' office the night before the publication of the libel, we had it from Mr. McNamee that Mr. Higgins told him he had not seen the article till it had appeared in his paper. He said it had been inserted by one of his men, and the question naturally arose, if there was no malice in the publication of this article, why did Mr. Higgins not go in the box? Why did he allow these opposite statements to remain, one of which must be a lie? It is clear that he feared questions might be put to him which he could not answer truthfully, without weakening still further his case. Mr. Higgins had the means of ascertaining the truth or falsity of the matter which he was publishing, and therefore the Court held that having these means and failing to use them, there was sufficient evidence of malice. Neither could it be shown there was cause or reason for the publication. If the article had stopped with what had been obtained from another paper, it would not have been so bad; but as the imperial "we" had put it, it had "compelled him to meet the charge." The "in perial Higgins" under the imperial "we" had called upon Mr. Walkem to refute the charges. Any damages which might be given him would be but small recompense for the immense expense and trouble to which he had been put in having evidence taken at Ottawa, transcriptions, &c., made. If there ever was a case of libel this certainly was one, and such a one as demanded considerable damages.

His Lordship, in his charge to the jury, said he would be as brief as possible. Mr. Higgins had put forward a good deal concerning his duty as a journalist. Every one dealing with the public had a duty. A public house keeper had a duty. It was supply liquors, but only pure, unadulterated liquors, and it was just the same with the journalist. It was his duty to publish the pure and unadulterated. The falsity of the article complained of is not denied, and a man could not be excused for publishing a libelous and scurrilous article because it had appeared in another paper. It was no excuse for a man after all the mischief had been done to say that he had believed what he published to be true. His Lordship here read Baron Hutcheson on libel and asked if, in view of the law laid down by that authority, this was not a case of libel. The mental worry and trouble which the plaintiff had been caused should be considered, and if the jury were satisfied that this was an unjustifiable and foundationless libel it would be their duty to give substantial damages.

Mr. Davie asked His Lordship to charge the jury that if the libelous paragraph was fairly copied from the Post they could only find nominal damages. Also, that if the whole article was not injurious to the plaintiff they should in that case find for the defendant. He also wished His Lordship to ask the jury to decide whether there was malice or not.

His Lordship would ask the jury to find on the general question of libel.

Mr. Drake—I object to Mr. Davie raising any further points till the jury have retired, as this is equal to another speech to the jury.

The jury retired at 6:20, and after being out a short time brought in a verdict of $2,500 and costs for the plaintiff.

Mr. Drake moved for judgment. Mr. Davie objected, but His Lordship was of opinion that it would be better to give judgment at once in order to prevent delay in case of an appeal.

Mr. Davie said the full court sat on the 11th July, and fourteen days having to be given the case would be delayed until December, unless the Judge gave leave to serve notice of appeal for these sittings.

His Lordship said he thought this a reasonable proposal and made an order giving leave to appeal at the ensuing session, Mr. Davie undertaking to give notice on Monday next.

COWICHAN'S JUBILEE.

A Large Gathering of Indians—Exciting Races—Sailor Riders.

One of the largest gatherings ever held in Cowichan took place on Coronation Day to witness the Indian sports. H. M. S. Caroline arrived in Cowichan Bay on Saturday in the place of the Conquest, which vessel has been ordered to the Sandwich Islands. During her stay the Caroline was been crowded with visitors, and all were delighted to have an opportunity of seeing the ship and speak in the highest terms of the great kindness shown them by Sir William Wiseman, his officers and crew. The ship was gay with bunting, and flags and evergreens decorated the wharf. At 12 o'clock a royal salute was fired after which the races commenced.

The dugout (4-oared) boats and large canoe races were very well contested, seven starting in each. The distance was three miles round a small boat anchored down the bay, so that all could see the latter part of the contests. The Somenos 12 paddle canoe carried off the highest prize. The only uneven race was the one between a canoe and the Caroline's cutter, the canoe coming in half a mile ahead, though the sailors pulled bravely all the time at their heavy boat. Indians who were present in large numbers from round the coast were so taken up with sight-seeing that much difficulty was experienced in getting the canoes ready to start and some races on the programme were left out. The Amelia brought some visitors from Victoria and during the afternoon Mr. Croft, M. P. P. and party arrived in the steamer Daisy from Chemainus.

On Wednesday horse and foot racing took place on the flats, closing with a grand race by blue jackets on Indian horses lent for the occasion. This race caused more amusement to both riders and spectators than any other. No mishap occurred and the whole affair passed off satisfactory. The Caroline left for Vancouver on Thursday at 6 a. m.

Give Them a Chance.

That is to say, your lungs. Also all your breathing machinery. Very wonderful machinery it is. Not only the larger air-passages, but the thousands of little tubes and cavities leading from them.

When these are clogged and choked with matter which ought not to be there, your lungs cannot half do their work. And what they do, they cannot do well.

Call it cold, cough, croup, pneumonia, catarrh, consumption or any of the family of throat and nose and head and lung obstructions, all are bad. All ought to be got rid of. There is just one sure way to get rid of them. That is to take Boschee's German Syrup, which any druggist will sell you at 75 cents a bottle. Even if everything else has failed you, you may depend upon this for certain.

Coaling the Parthia.

Preparations are being made at Vancouver to coal the steamship Parthia, under superintendence of stevedore York, thus saving the vessel the time, trouble and expense of going over to Nanaimo for fuel as did the Abyssinia. Bye-and-bye these vessels will coal at Esquimalt, as Mr. Dunsmuir is to build coal bunkers there.

A Large Raffle.

The largest raffle that ever took place in this province, and perhaps on this coast, was announced to take place at Vancouver yesterday. It was no other than the vessel of many trials and tribulations—the bark Robert Kerr, 1100 tons register. There were seventy chances at $100 each, and the winner was entitled to the vessel or $6000 in cash.

VANCOUVER EN FETE.

Dominion Day Celebration in the Terminal City a Success.

The Day's Festivities—Illuminations—Regatta and Sports.

(Special to THE TIMES.)

VANCOUVER, July 1.—The twentieth anniversary of the confederation of the old provinces of the east into the Dominion of Canada was celebrated in the young and ambitious city of Vancouver with more than the usual enthusiasm characteristic of such celebrations. The day was lovely; a bright warm sun shed its genial rays upon the terminal city, while a refreshing breeze from the gulf enhanced the enjoyment of the assembled thousands by moderating the unusual warmth of the day. The city, which but one short year ago, was wiped from off the face of the world by a fire unparalleled in its severity and completeness, was dressed in holiday attire, and the citizens vied with each other in their desire to make the national holiday, and what we may call the first anniversary of the city since its new birth, a triumphant success. The principal streets—Water, Carroll, Hastings, Abbott, Cambie, Alexander, Powell and Oppenheimer streets—were of evergreens, and among the numerous private decorations there were many of unique design and artistic arrangement. On Cordova, the main business thoroughfare of the city, a handsome arch was erected, bearing the legend, "1887—Jubilee—1887. Welcome to our visitors and the C. P. R. to its Pacific terminus." H. M. S. Triumph arrived from Victoria and H. M. S. Caroline from Cowichan Thursday afternoon and anchored in the harbor, when commanders and officers generally were "at home" to all visitors, and during the fete their ships were handsomely decorated with flags, while the jolly blue jackets mixed with the citizens and participated in the sports, as only blue jackets can. The Yosemite arrived at 8:30 with about two hundred and fifty visitors from Victoria, including His Worship Mayor Fell, Couns. Braden and Harris, City Clerk Robinson, C. E. Prevost, A. Wilson and other notables; and a few hours after a train of six coaches, containing the New Westminster volunteers, firemen and citizens, to the number of about five hundred, steamed up to the depot and amidst the cheers of the thousands assembled to greet them. Later arrivals swelled the number in the city to not less than five or six thousand. His Worship Mayor McLean, members of the Council, and the celebration committee, welcomed the visitors at the boats and cars and escorted them to the city. One of the most pleasing features of the occasion was the hospitality of the citizens from the Mayor down. Each individual Vancouverite seemed to have voted himself into an independent committee of one, with power to add to the number if more were required, to receive and entertain guests; and with a lively recollection of the efforts of several of its leading citizens, THE TIMES special is in a position to state that a remarkable success attended their efforts in this direction.

WITH BANNERS FLYING

Citizens and Visitors.

Promptly at 11 o'clock, the imposing procession started from the City Hall, making a complete tour of the city via Powell, Water, Granville, Hastings, Westminster, Oppenheimer, Cordova and Water streets to the fire hall at the foot of Carrol street, where it disbanded. When en route a halt was made opposite the studio of an enterprising photographer, and several excellent views of the first public procession in Vancouver, were obtained. The bands and bag-pipes of the New Westminster Highlanders furnished excellent music during the progress of the procession, and at various times throughout the day.

LACROSSE.

During the forenoon the Victoria and Vancouver Clubs played a match game in the new field on the hill near the C. P. R hotel. The contest was a pleasant one, the greatest harmony prevailing throughout the game, which resulted in two straight wins for the Victoria boys. The ground was a new field, only a day or two ago cleared of stumps and logs, and consequently was not the best for the purpose; but it was the very best to be obtained and was not more favorable to one side than to the other.

The game was taken in two straight heats. In the first game the rubber was put through by Tight, after 55 minutes hard play. The second game was taken from home field by Hibben. Time, 7 minutes. The following is a list of the the Victorians comprising the local team:

NAME.	POSITIONS.
Fletcher	Goal
McKenzie	Cover Point
Ledingham	Point
Cox	First Defence
Wards	Field
W Tabb	Field
De Quisbis	Centre
Lowe	Field
Hibben	Field
G Tight	Home Field
A Rensing	Home
W H Clark	Inside Home
P B Macabe	Field Captain

The names of the Vancouver team we were unable to obtain.

The Victorians are warm in their praise of the treatment given them by the Vancouverites, which was positively princely.

AQUATIC SPORTS.

The yacht race was one of the principal events which created considerable interest. There were nine entries. Laura A, a New Westminster boat, sailed by Mr Insley, came in first by ten seconds; Henderson's boat, sailed by Graveley, Vancouver, 2nd. The race was closely contested throughout, Henderson's boat several times overhauling all others, but the gaff topsail sheet parted and on the home stretch was no use. The Cordova's boat was a good third. Single scalls, two entries, Bush and Paine of Victoria, prize $50. Bush won easily. Four-oared gigs, four entries. A draw between the Victoria and the Elizabeth.

OTHER SPORTS.

Hose reel, Vancouver No. 1, first; time, 2.08½ sec.; Hyacks, second; time, 2.15 sec.

Base ball, Westminster 21 runs; Vancouver 12.

One hundred yard race, Lewis, 1st; Taylor 2nd. Quarter-mile race, Munday, 1st; Taylor, 2nd. Firemen's race, Nanaimo, 1st; Vancouver, 2nd. Standing long jump, Lilly, 1st; Peck, 2nd. Standing high jump, Gray, 1st; Lewis, 2nd. Hop, step and jump, Lewis, 1st, 39 ft 8½ in; Tite, 2nd. Running jump, Lewis, 1st; Munday 2nd. Running high jump, Lewis, 1st; Houston, 2nd.

LUNCHEON.

The Mayor and Council of Vancouver entertained the visitors to the number of one or two hundred to a champagne luncheon, spread in the Messrs. Oppenheimer's building, at 12 o'clock. Mayor Fell occupied the post of honor at the head of the table, and filled it with his customary bonhomie.

THE ILLUMINATIONS.

The illuminations began as soon as the last rays of the departing sun had lost themselves in the shadows of the night. They were exceedingly beautiful. The business places along the water front from Hasting's mill to the depot, on Cordova, Carroll and other leading streets, were ablaze with the lights of thousands of fantastic Chinese lanterns. The saw mill was illuminated grandly and from a distance loomed up against the dark background like a skeleton frame of fire. Bows of lanterns strung from the bows of the two men-of-war, which lay at anchor, to the top of the foremast and along the mainmasts and mizzenmasts, while powerful lime lights flashed from the rigging and brilliant electric lights were thrown by reflectors on every portion of the city and harbor, lighted up the buildings as bright as noon day sun. Small steamers, yachts and row boats festooned with lines of fire, which flitted about transformed ever and anon into glittering gondoliers, as if the waters were turned into liquid flame by the flashes from ships. The scene was exceedingly beautiful an I was witnessed until late by the delighted thousands from the shore.

A GRAND BALL

closed the proceedings of the first day. The civic officials and private citizens were indefatigable in their efforts to extend a warm hospitality to the visitors. The celebration was an unequalled success in every respect.

THE LATE SESSION.

The first session of the sixth Parliament of Canada is a thing of the past. In some respects it will be a memorable one. Almost a majority of the members sat there for the first time. Notwithstanding the repeated divisions that took place the relative strength of both parties is still an enigma; but it is safe to state that the Government majority is in the neighborhood of thirty in a full House. The first division in the House was on Mr. CURRAN'S Irish Home Rule resolutions, to which amendments were moved but were lost, the original resolutions somewhat altered by suggestions by Mr. BLAKE being carried by a vote of 135 to 47. The Queen's county, N. B., election case was a subject of lively discussion early in the session. Mr. WELDON (St. Johns), after the papers had been before the House, moved that the Returning Officer should have declared Mr. KING, not Mr. BAIRD, elected. The Minister of Justice moved an amendment referring the case to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which was carried by a vote 109 to 77. Subsequently the committee reported in favor of leaving the matter to be settled by the Courts in accordance with recent practice. To Mr. WELDON'S motion to substitute the name of Mr. KING for that of BAIRD, the usurper, an amendment was moved approving the finding of the committee, which was carried by a vote of 105 to 85. The item in regard to the advance of salary to Mr. POPE, Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, was abandoned. An effort to repeal the Scott Act was defeated.

The Government measures passed during the session include a bill establishing a Department of Trade and Commerce, and the re-organization of the Departments of Customs and Inland Revenue; a bill for establishing the position of Solicitor-General; a bill amending and making important changes in the Court of Exchequer act, and providing for a better mode of trial of claims against the Crown; also bills providing for the improvement of procedure in criminal cases, amending the Franchise act so as to obviate the necessity for a revision of voters' lists this year, amending the Dominion Lands Act, providing for the representation of the Northwest Territory in the Senate, respecting the Department of Finance and the Treasury Board, and to amend the Indian Act.

The following is a summary of the Legislative business of the session; Bills introduced in the Senate, 18; Bills introduced in the Commons, 156; Senate bills passed, 14; Commons Bills passed, 117; Bills passed both Houses, 131; Government measures introduced in Commons, 50; private Bills introduced in Commons, 67. The nature of the 78 Private Bills introduced in the two Houses was Railway Bills. Incorporation of companies and amendments, 40; loan companies, 7; insurance companies, 6; banks, 2; land companies, 2; railway and other bridges, 3; divorce, 5; trust companies 2; steamships 2; general 9. Papers not disposed of, 24, including Mr. MILLS' motion respecting the constitution of the Senate; Mr. GUILLET'S, declaring it expedient to relegate the power of prohibiting the sale and manufacture of intoxicating liquors to the Provinces; Mr. MITCHELL'S, in favor of manhood suffrage; Mr. PATTERSON'S, (Essex), for a return of the criminal statistics in counties where the Canada Temperance Act is in operation; and Mr. PLATT'S, in favor of commercial union with the United States. The others were of a local character.

Since the opening of the session four of the members died, joining the majority in the great unknown land. These were Messrs. CAMPBELL, Digby; MOFFATT, Restigouche; CAMPBELL, South Renfrew, and CIMON of Charlevoix.

The most remarkable event that occurred during the session was the illness of the Hon. Mr. BLAKE and his forced withdrawal from the leadership of the Liberal party in Canada. The honorable gentleman's sickness is of such a nature that his restoration to perfect health again is extremely problematical. The probability of his resuming the leadership of this party is also out of the question for some time to come. This is not a party calamity; it is a national one. In the legislative halls of his native country he leaves behind him no peer as a thorough master of the minutest details in all matters submitted to parliament, to say nothing of his matchless eloquence and the sincerity of his convictions. By political foe and friend alike is his withdrawal deplored and all join in the hope and wish that it is but temporary. The selection of the Hon Mr. LAURIER as Mr. BLAKE'S successor is possibly the wisest move that could be made, all circumstances considered. It is to be hoped Mr. LAURIER will receive that support from the Liberal party to which by virtue of his exalted office he is entitled. His opponents have always treated him with marked condescension and fairness. This treatment we are persuaded will be continued to him now that he is the recognized leader of so influential a party as are the Liberals of Canada. The honorable gentleman if he deserves to be familiar with the whole of Canada should lose no time in visiting the far west. Already he has been in Ontario. West of Lake Superior is by far the most important section in Canada for future progress and development. With the exception of the Hon. Mr. MILLS, Messrs. CHARLTON, JONES, MCMULLEN, SCRIVER and a few others, no distinguished member of the Liberal party has visited British Columbia. Of this magnificent country there is much yet to learn by our public men. Those who have visited us have gone back with enlarged conceptions regarding the land of "illimitable possibilities," and the province of the midnight sun, whose "sea of mountains" is believed to contain more mineral wealth than any other section on the continent, and whose intrinsic value is greater than all the rest of Canada (excepting Ontario) combined. Here all our public men are cordially welcomed and treated as gentlemen should be, no matter what their political leanings may be. Then gentlemen, come west; pay us a visit and judge for yourselves the merits of the Pacific Province and her claim to substantial recognition at the hands of those who are guiding the ship of state.

CANADA'S FINANCE MINISTER.

Sir CHARLES TUPPER is now on his way to England to resume the duties of Canadian commissioner. By a great many it is said that he has intimated that he will not return to active political life in Canada. Sir CHARLES may at present be of that belief, but few else will endorse that opinion. It is generally admitted that Sir CHARLES' presence in the House added considerable to the strength and confidence of the Conservative party. In politics he has always been recognized as a Rupert—a man of tremendous power both in and out of parliament. In bygone days the admiration which was felt for his force of character did not extend to his forbearance and civility. In brief his extreme acceptance of the adage that "all is fair in war" says the Ottawa Evening Journal, often roused the bitterest ill-feeling against him, and certainly hampered his usefulness and hindered his success. That period seems to be past. During the late session of Parliament no man in either House treated opponents with more uniform consideration and courtesy than did Sir CHARLES TUPPER. This did not seem to be due to any preconcerted determination on his part. It seemed to be simply the result of his transference for a time from Canadian political squabbles to the broader field of European diplomacy. From a position in which he came in contact with big men and big issues, yet without requiring to take a pugilistic interest in either, he had bird's eye views of political crises here and apparently came to appreciate at their true littleness the bitterness of temper and spitefulness of speech which distinguish so many of our party men. From being one of the worst sinners himself, he reformed into a statesman who is able to impress also as a gentleman. The improvement struck parliament, and did more; it has given Sir CHARLES TUPPER a weight in the country at large which he had not before. Previously, thanks to his fierceness in party disputes, the feeling was that with Sir CHARLES it was a case of party first and the country second. Now there is a feeling that he has risen superior to at least party meannesses and spite. At a distance from both party and Canada, and with both contrasted in peaceful perspective, he is believed to have gained a better idea of their relative importance, and it is scarcely too much to say that while before his acceptance of the office of High Commissioner some years ago, his nomination as leader would have broken the Conservative party, the party would now be broken by the nomination of any other man. He goes again to England with the confidence of Canadians to an enormously greater extent than when he first went there, and we are under the impression that he is sure to return to the Canadian Parliament, and to return soon. If he does not, stranger things have happened than that he will return some day as Governor-General.

Mr. Gladstone, in reply to an invitation from a Washington gentleman to visit the United States, says that his age and engagements preclude his undertaking the journey.

The Liberals of Digby, Nova Scotia, have nominated Mr. Robicheau as their candidate for the representation in the Commons of that county, created vacant by the death of the late Mr. Campbell, who defeated the Hon. Mr. Vail by a considerable majority.

S. X. Cimion, M. P., for Charlevoix, died suddenly at Murray Bay on the 26th inst. Deceased was born at Murray Bay in 1829, and was first elected to parliament in 1867. He was a Conservative in politics and a contractor in business, having built the provincial parliament buildings in Quebec.

The Hon. Wilfred Laurier has unconditionally accepted the leadership of the Liberal party. The Globe, in making the announcement, says it cannot chase the hope that Blake will return to political life. It says: "It may be taken for granted that the shrewd parliamentarians of the Liberal party know the abilities of him whom they have chosen and all may safely reckon that the trial will not find Laurier wanting in any respect. He has most gallantly and unselfishly placed himself at the disposal of his friends. Every Liberal owes him gratitude and aid; and even Conservatives owes him justice and fair play."

Presbyterianism in British Columbia and the Dominion.

DR. COCHRANE INTERVIEWED.

The presence of Dr. Cochrane, the convener of the Western Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church in our city, enables us to lay before our readers a concise statement of the present condition and prospects of the great Home Mission work of that denomination in this province and elsewhere. In reply to the question, as to the number of Mission Stations, and expenditure for the past year, he states, that there are 900 Mission Stations and upwards of 200 augmented congregations, under the care of the Eastern and Western Committees, with an expenditure last year of one hundred thousand dollars. Three hundred and eighty of these Mission Stations are in Manitoba, and the Northwestern Territories and British Columbia alone. The increase in the Northwest since 1873 has been simply wonderful, and the demand is as urgent as ever. Whereas in 1872 there were only four or five ministers all told, there are now five Presbyteries, or including that of Columbia six, with some 90 ordained ministers on their rolls. During the last three years the staff in British Columbia has been greatly increased, and now the church has a Presbytery of eleven members: Messrs. Jamieson, Fraser, Thomson, Chandler, McRae, Dunn, Jaffary, Chisholm, Tait, Patterson and Cormack. In addition to these several students are employed this summer, and there are under the Colonial Committee of the Church of Scotland, Messrs. Christie and Miller.

Speaking of the probabilities of a union between the Presbyterian Church in Canada and the Church of Scotland, Doctor Cochrane said that it was very generally felt that such a union was exceedingly desirable. Outsiders could not understand why, in British Columbia, there should be the representatives of two Presbyterian Churches, when in all the other Provinces union had been effected. With only one Presbytery there would be a saving of men and means, and more harmonious working. The Church of Scotland had for many years rendered signal service in supporting ministers in the Province and it was doubtless felt that to break the connection was somewhat difficult, so long as the Mother Church was desirous or willing to continue it. In the interests, however, of the cause, he felt assured that the Colonial Committee in Edinburgh, would at once accede to any proposal coming from British Columbia looking towards union, while at the same time maintaining a practical interest in the progress of mission work in the Province. The Church at Langley, with the consent of the Home Church, had, during the past year, been transferred to Canada, and the Church at Comox was now in correspondence with the Colonial Committee for a similar purpose. The great distance and expense involved in sending out ministers from Scotland, and the evident inability of the Colonial Committee having direct supervision of the field, is all in favor of union, while the ministers trained in Canada have shown themselves eminently adapted for our new and rising Provinces.

THE C. W. BUSK BANKRUPTCY.

To THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—In your interesting account of the proceedings in bankruptcy in England, of Mr. C. W. Busk in Thursday's TIMES, his liabilities being £14,122 and assets £50, you very properly pointed out that there must be some strong and potent reason why he, for years a resident in British Columbia, should seek at this late date the English and not the Colonial Courts. There must be some glaring flaw in our bankruptcy laws, and I think this case should cause the Chamber of Commerce in Victoria to bestir itself. Surely our laws should be brought into line with those of intelligent countries, and it should no longer be a reproach to the Dominion that practically there are no bankruptcy laws in Canada. The most honest trader may be unlucky, and yet, as you point out, he can never wholly free himself in Canada from his creditors, though they have made an equitable settlement with him.

This state of the bankruptcy laws leads many unlucky tradesmen to "skip" to the States or to England, to take all they can with them, and never to return here to settle with their creditors. I know honest and decent men who never can acquire property, because it may be in their early youth they have been unfortunate and unlucky. Who can say that that is a desirable state of things? A discussion of this subject in the columns of THE TIMES and in the Chamber of Commerce might possibly lead our Attorney-General to create new laws. At present it appears to me that when a man who has failed knows that he never can be cleared until he has paid in full, he has no inducement to make the best settlement he can with his creditors. Such a condition of things is a relic of barbarism.

This case of Mr. Busk is most instructive on all sides. Perhaps through no grave fault of his own he has failed, and though living in Victoria for two years after his failure, he is compelled to seek relief in the Courts of England, six thousand miles away, because he cannot get relief here. A day is appointed (the 1st of August) in Greenwich at which questions may be put to him concerning his affairs and the cause of his failure. But who is there in Victoria or Nanaimo who can follow him 6000 miles to ask those questions, which we want to know? Again he says his bank book, his ledger, and his cash book are in the hands of "a friend" in Victoria. So what could we learn if we sent over to England? Why cannot his bank book, his ledger, and his cash book be shown by "a friend" in Victoria, where Mr. Busk says in his officially statement "nearly the whole of his creditors reside." Several creditors of his in Nanaimo would like some sort of answer to these questions.

CHAPTER IX.

WHAT THE FAIR HAD TO DO ABOUT IT.

THE house that Royal Thatcher so informally quitted in his exodus to the promised land of Biggs was one of those over-sized under-calculated dwellings conceived and erected in the extravagance of the San Francisco builder's hopes, and occupied finally in his despair. Intended originally as the palace of some lucheonte California Aladdin, it usually ended as a lodging house in which some helpless widow or hopeless spinster managed to combine respectability with the hard task of bread getting. Thatcher's landlady was one of the former class. She had unfortunately survived not only her husband but his property, and, living in some deserted chamber, had, after the fashion of the Italian nobility, let out the rest of the ruin. A tendency to dwell upon these facts gave her conversation a peculiar significance upon the first of each month. Thatcher had noticed this with the sensitiveness of an impoverished gentleman. But when, a few days after her lodger's sudden disappearance, a note came from him containing a draft in noble excess of all arrears and charges, the widow's heart was lifted, and the rock smitten with the golden wand gushed beneficence that shone in a new gown for the widow and a new suit for "Johnny," her son, a new oilcloth in the hall, better service to the lodgers, and, let us be thankful, a kindlier consideration for the poor little black-eyed painter from Monterey, then dreadfully behind in her room rent. For, to tell the truth, the calls upon Miss De Haro's scant purse by her uncle had lately been frequent, perjury having declined in the Monterey market through excessive and injudicious supply, until the line of demarcation between it and absolute verity was so finely drawn that Victor Garcia had remarked that "he might as well tell the truth at once and save his soul, since the devil was in the market."

Mistress Plodgitt, the landlady, could not resist the desire to acquaint Carmen De Haro with her good fortune. "He was always a friend of yours, my dear, and I know him to be a gentleman that would never let a poor widow suffer; and see what he says about you!" Here she produced Thatcher's note and read: "Tell my little neighbor that I shall come back soon to carry her and her sketching tools off by force, and I shall not let her return until she has caught the black mountains and the red rocks she used to talk about, and put the 'Blue Mass' mill in the foreground of the picture I shall order."

What is this, little one! Surely, Carmen, thou needst not blush at this, thy first grand offer. Holy Virgin! is it a necessity that thou shouldst stick the wrong end of thy brush in thy mouth, and then drop it in thy lap! Or was it taught thee by the good Sisters at the convent to stride in that boyish fashion to the side of thy elders and snatch from their hands the missive thou wouldst read! Many of the we would know, O Carmen—smallest of branches—speak, little one, even in thine own melodious speech, that I may commend thee and thy rare discretion to my own fair country women.

Alas, neither the present chronicler nor Mistress Plodgitt got any further information from the prudent Carmen, and must fain speculate upon certain facts that were already known.

Mistress Carmen's little room was opposite to Thatcher's, and once or twice, the doors being open, Thatcher had a glimpse across the passage of a black-haired and a sturdy, boyish little figure in a great blue apron, perched on a stool before an easel, and on the other hand, Carmen had often been conscious of the fumes of a meerschaum pipe penetrating her cloistered seclusion, and had seen across the passage, vaguely enveloped in the same nicotine cloud, an American Olympian, in a rocking chair, with his feet on the mantel shelf. They had once or twice met on the staircase, on which occasion Thatcher had greeted her with a word or two of respectful yet half humorous courtesy—a courtesy which never really offends a true woman, although it often piques her self-aplomb by the slight assumption of superiority in the humorist. A woman is quick to recognize the fact that the great and more dangerous passions are always serious, and may be excused if in self-respect she is often induced to try if there be not somewhere under the skin of this laughing Mercutio the flesh and blood of a Romeo. Thatcher was by nature a defender and protector; weakness, and weakness alone, stirred the depths of his tenderness—often, I fear, only through its half-humorous aspects—and on this plane he was pleased to place women and children. I mention this fact for the benefit of the more youthful members of my species, and am satisfied that an unconditional surrender and the complete laying down at the foot of beauty of all strong masculinity is a cheap Gallicism that is untranslatable to most women worthy the winning. For a woman must always look up to the man she truly loves—even if she has to go down on her knees to do it.

Only the masculine reader will infer from this that Carmen was in love with Thatcher; the more critical and analytical feminine eye will see nothing herein that might not have happened consistently with friendship. For Thatcher was no sentimentalist; he had hardly paid a compliment to the girl—even in the mopsken but most delicate form of attention. There were days when his room door was closed; there were days days succeeding those blanks when he met her as frankly and naturally as if he had seen her yesterday. Indeed, on these days following his flight the simple-minded Carmen, being aware—heaven knows how—that he had not opened his door during that period, and fearing sickness, sudden death, or perhaps suicide, by her appeals to the landlady, assisted unwittingly in discovering his flight and defection. As she was for a few moments an indignant to Mrs. Plodgitt, it is evident that she had but little sympathy with the delinquent. And besides, hitherto she had known only Concho, her earliest friend, and was true to his memory, as against all Americanos, whom she firmly believed to be his murderers.

So she dismissed the offer and the man from her mind, and went back to her painting—a fancy portrait of the good Padre Junipero Serra, a great missionary, who, happily for the integrity of his bones and character, died some hundred years before the Americans took possession of California. The picture was fair but unsalable, and she began to think seriously of sign painting, which was then much more popular and marketable. An unfinished head of San Juan de Bautista, artistically framed in clouds, also disposed of to a roominost druggist for $20, where it did good service as exhibiting the effect of four bottles of "Jones's Fragile Eradicator," and in a pleasant and unobtrusive way revived the memory of the saint. Still, she felt weary and was growing despondent, and had a longing for the good sisters and the blameless lethargy of conventual life, and then——

He came!

But not as the prince should come on a white charger, to carry away this cruelly-abused and enchanted damsel. He was sunburned, he was bearded like "the pard," he was a little careless as to his dress and preoccupied in his ways. But his mouth and eyes were the same, and when he repeated in his old frank, half-mischievous way the invitation of his letter, poor little Carmen could only hesitate and blush.

A thought struck him and sent the color to his face. Your gentleman born is always as modest as a woman. He ran down stairs and seizing the widowed Plodgitt, said hastily:

"You're just killing yourself here. Take a change. Come down to Monterey for a day or two with me and bring Miss De Haro with you for company."

The old lady recognized the situation. Thatcher was now a man of vast possibilities. In all maternal daughters of Eve there is the slightest bit of the chaperone and match maker. It is the last way of reviving the past.

She consented and Carmen De Haro could not well refuse.

The ladies found the "Blue Mass" mills very much as Thatcher had previously delivered it to them, "a trifle rough and mannish." But he made over to them the one tenement reserved for himself and slept with his men, or more likely under the trees. At first Mrs. Plodgitt missed gas and running water, and these several conveniences of civilization, among which I fear may be mentioned sheets and pillow cases; but the balsam of the mountain air soothed her neuralgia and her temper. As for Carmen, she rioted in the unlimited license of her absolute freedom from conventional restraint and the indulgence of her child-like impulses. She scoured the ledges far and wide alone; she dipped into dark copses and scrambled over the sterile patches of chemisal, and came back laden with the spoil of buckeye blossoms, manzanita berries and laurel. But she would not make a sketch of the "Blue Mass company's" mills on a Mercator's projection—something that could be afterwards lithographed or chromoed, with the mills turning out tons of quicksilver through the energies of a happy and picturesque assemblage of miners—even to please her padrone, Don Royal Thatcher. On the contrary, she made a study of the ruins of the crumbled and decayed red rock furnace, with the black mountain above it, and the light of a dying camp fire shining upon it, and the dull red excavations in the ledge. But even this did not satisfy her until she had made some alterations, and when she finally brought her finished study to Don Royal, she looked at him a little defiantly. Thatcher admired honestly, and then criticised a little humorously and dishonestly. "But couldn't you, for a consideration, put up a sign board on that rock with the inscription, 'Road to the Blue Mass company's new mills to the right,' and combine business with art! That's the fault of you geniuses. But what's this blanketed figure doing here, lying before the furnace! You never saw one of my miners there—and a Mexican, too, by his serape."

"That," quoth Mistress Carmen, coolly," was put in to fill up the foreground—I wanted something there to balance the picture."

"But," continued Thatcher, dropping into unconscious admiration again, "it's drawn to the life. Tell me, Miss De Haro, before I ask the aid and counsel of Mrs. Plodgitt, who is my hated rival, and your lay figure and model!" "Oh," said Carmen, with a little sigh, "it's only poor Concho." "And where is Concho!" (a little impatiently.) "He's dead, Don Royal." "Dead!" "Of a verity very dead—murdered by your countrymen." "I see—and you know him!" "He was my friend."

"Oh!"

"Truly."

"But" (wickedly), "isn't this a rather ghastly advertisement—outside of an illustrated newspaper—of my property!"

"Ghastly, Don Royal. Look you, he sleeps."

"Ay" (in Spanish), "as the dead."

Carmen (crossing herself hastily), "After the fashion of the dead."

They were both feeling uncomfortable. Carmen was shivering. But, being a woman, and tactful, she recovered her head first. "It is a study for myself, Don Royal; I shall make you another."

And she slipped away, as she thought, out of the subject and his presence.

But she was mistaken; in the evening he renewed the conversation. Carmen began to fence, not from cowardice or deceit, as the masculine reader would readily infer, but from some wonderful feminine instinct that told her to be cautious. But he got from her the fact, to him before unknown, that she was the niece of his mean antagonist, and, being a gentleman, so redoubled his attentions and his courtesy that Mrs. Plodgitt, made up her mind that it was a foregone conclusion, and seriously reflected as to what she should wear on the momentous occasion. But that night poor Carmen cried herself to sleep, resolving that she would hereafter cast aside her wicked uncle for this good-hearted Americano, yet never once connected her innocent penmanship with the deadly feud between them. Women—the best of them—are strong as to collateral facts, swift of deduction, but vague as children are to the exact statement or recognition of premises. It is hardly necessary to say that Carmen had never thought of connecting any act of hers with the claims of her uncle, and the circumstance of the signature she had totally forgotten.

The masculine reader will now understand Carmen's confusion and blushes, and believe himself an ass to have thought them a confession of original affection. The feminine reader will, by this time, become satisfied that the deceitful minx's sole idea was to gain the affections of Thatcher. And really I don't know who is right.

Nevertheless, she painted a sketch for Thatcher—which now adorns the company's office in San Francisco, in which the property is laid out in pleasing geometrical lines, and the rosy promise of the future instinct in every touch of the brush. Then, having earned her "wage," as she believed, she became somewhat cold and shy to Thatcher. Whereat that gentleman redoubled his attentions, seeing only in her presence a certain reprise, which concerned her more than himself. The niece of his enemy meant nothing more to him than an interesting girl—to be protected always—to be feared, never. But even suspicion may be insidiously placed in noble minds.

Mistress Plodgitt, thus early estopped of matchmaking, of course put the blame on her own sex, and went over to the stronger side—the man's.

"It's a great pity gals should be so curious," she said, sotto voce, to Thatcher, when Carmen was in one of her sullen moods. "Yet I s'pose it's in her blood. Them Spaniards a always revengeful—like the Eyetalians."

Thatcher honestly locked his surprise.

The Quickest Yet

To-day Dr. Jones showed the writer an invoice and bill of lading of goods bought and shipped from Toronto on the 20th of June, and which reached the C. P. N. Company's wharf in this city on the 27th. This is certainly annihilating space with a vengeance. Who can beat it? Importers, don't all speak at once.

The Place for Bargains.

J. Sehl has just opened, in addition to his well assorted stock of Furniture, Carpets, Oil Cloth and Linoleum, a complete line of Crockery, Glassware, Lamps, and Bar Glasses, the finest ever offered in the country, at remarkably low prices, having arrived before the advance in freight rates.

Very Unruly.

The conduct of certain members of the City Council to His Worship Mayor Fell last Wednesday night was extremely unbecoming. Exception can be taken to the ruling of a Mayor, Speaker or presiding officer over any deliberative body, but no Councillor, Alderman, member of Parliament, or any other person, has the right to ask him to sit down, or to state that he is out of order. Parties doing so are guilty of unruly conduct, and can be punished by imprisonment. The Mayor should enforce order and decorum whilst the Council is in session. There has been too much lately of the bear-garden about the Council proceedings. A word to the wise should be sufficient, and the hint thus given, it is to be hoped, will not be in vain.

Two Hearts as One.

The numerous friends of Mr. Archibald Carmichael, with Messrs. Drake, Jackson & Helmcken, will rejoice with him in his joining the noble army of benedicts. The happy event took place in Hamilton, Ont., on the 23rd ult. The bride is a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Kempt, LL. D., and one of the most popular young ladies in the ambitious little city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. J. Laidlaw at the residence of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. C. H. Sutherland, Main street, West. The happy couple are on their way to Victoria.

Good For Nicola.

Mr. W. F. McCulloch, who has been absent for a month prospecting in the Nicola country, returned to the city on Thursday evening. His stay here, however will be brief, as he intends to return there again at once. A little bird whispers in our ears that Mac has struck it rich in a quartz ledge of great value, but his native modesty prevents him from giving the public particulars of his good luck. His well-wishers are congratulating him on the success which has at last crowned his efforts. Barrels of coin will be rolled out by him shortly—go the claims, and we hope it will be so.

Jake Sharp Guilty.

The sensational trial of New York's "prince of boodlers," Jake Sharp, has come to an end at last. The charge was for bribing aldermen to grant a franchise for a street-railway on Broadway, on which $500,000 was used as "balm." The jury were out thirteen minutes and brought in a verdict of guilty. The penalty is ten years or $5,000. Sentence will be passed July 13th, and in the meantime a new trial will be asked.

The Douglas House.

This old and well-known private hotel has changed ownership, Mrs. Douglas having sold her interest therein to Mr. George Richardson, an old and well-known citizen of Victoria, who is now in possession. A thorough overhauling and refitting of this favorite private hotel will take place. Under the management of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson The Douglas will become more popular than ever.

Deserved Promotion.

The many friends of Mr. H. B. W. Aikman in this city and throughout the Province will be pleased to learn that he has been appointed a member of the Winnipeg Dominion Land Board as well as becoming the Dominion Land Agent for this Province. He is an extremely popular and efficient officer—the right man in the right place—respected by all with whom he comes in contact.

Champion Scotch Fling Dancer.

At the Club Theatre last evening there was a good sized audience, who all went away well pleased. The feature of the entertainment was M'lle. Bertha in the most artistic songs and dances that have ever been seen in this city. Her Scotch Highland Fling cannot be surpassed in any country.

Tony Cigars.

Over the C. P. R.

Travel over the C. P. R. is steadily increasing in volume. Many of those who have been wintering and visiting on the coast are returning by this line in order to familiarize themselves with the resources, climate and scenery through the country traversed by our National Highway.

Black and Tan Cigars.

Caledonian Picnic.

The St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society's picnic at Agricultural Grounds on Monday will wind up the picnic season for the present. Don't forget to get there all the same. A full line of sports and plenty of dancing constitute the main attractions.

For Tacoma.

The elegant steamer North Pacific will leave at 6:45 o'clock in the morning for Tacoma for the great celebration. The ride across the Straits and up the Sound on a beautiful July morning alone will be worth the cheap round trip fare of $3. Tickets are good till next Friday.

New Boiler Arrives.

The steamer Emma Hayward came into the harbor this afternoon with a new boiler as her principal item of freight for the steamer Rainbow, otherwise known as the Teaser, which was manufactured in Toronto.

Attains his Majority.

Mr. Wm. Dickson, well known in this city, yesterday, (Dominion Day) attained his majority and came into possession of his wealth—about $80,000. We trust our young friend will now make good use of his time and means.

Mr. T. S. Higginson, Dominion Timber Inspector, is in the city, as jolly, affable and urbane as it is possible for an official to be.

The Hon. Thomas White, Minister of the Interior, will leave Ottawa in a few days for the west. It is understood that he will extend his visit to Victoria.

Mrs. Douglas, late of the Douglas House, leaves for the east in a few days. During her absence she will be joined by her son, Mr. Cross, who is becoming a proficient as a musician.

Mr. Alfred Jones, a leading Winnipeg insurance and financial broker, is in the city. He was here a year ago, and notices a wonderful change in the city since then.

Mr. Reginald Nuttall was a passenger by the Elder to-day for San Francisco. He will be absent from the province for some time. Mrs Nuttall and family remain in the city.

Mr. Evans, who in company with Mr. W. C. Ward was thrown from a cart and injured some time ago has sufficiently recovered from his injuries to be able to return home. He leaves for England to-night.

Mr. W. V. Brown, one of our best known pioneers, visited Burrard Inlet yesterday after an absence of 23 years. He marvels at the change which a few years have wrought there and with so enterprising a population he has no doubt of the future prosperity and rapid growth of the peninsula on which Vancouver and New Westminster are built.

Mr. Campbell Sweeny, well known in Winnipeg as manager of the Bank of Montreal there for many years, and lately in charge of the Halifax agency, has been appointed manager for the Vancouver branch and will open the agency there about the 15th instant. Mr. Sweeny is a native of Fergus, Ont. Mrs. Sweeny was a sister to the late Sidney Blanchard, Q. C., of Winnipeg, formerly of Nova Scotia. Mr. and Mrs. Sweeny have many friends in this province who will hail with pleasure their arrival on the coast. He is a sound banker and financier, a pushing citizen and will be quite an acquisition to the business men of Vancouver.

Mr. J. J. Kenney, manager for the Western Assurance Company of Toronto, is in the city. Mrs. Kenney accompanies him. They were on a visit to San Francisco. The Western is one of the best managed of Canadian concerns. Its stock is regarded as the best of security offered as 10 per cent paid on the shares of the Company. Mr. Kenney is a live insurancer, and has built up a very large business for his company in the east.

Mr. Shakespeare, M. P., returned from Ottawa on Thursday evening. He is suffering from a slight cold, but otherwise is in good health and working well after his arduous duties. He reports continued interest in the east in British Columbia, and that prominent cabinet ministers and members of the Senate and Commons will visit us this summer. The harbor is to be dredged and a complete survey made of it in order that a proper data may be secured as to its requirements.

Generous.

A very handsome and appropriate silver challenge cup has been presented by Mr. E. Crow Baker, M. P., to the British Columbia Rifle Association for competition at the approaching prize meeting. Mr. Baker as President of the Association has taken a very active interest in its affairs and has on more than one occasion given very generous proofs of his desire to encourage the objects of the association. The cup is to be won by the competitor making the highest aggregate score in all matches, and can be seen at Messrs. Shears & Page, Government St

A Competent Administrator.

Mr. A. M. Burgess, Deputy Minister of the Interior, accompanied by Mrs. Burgess and his private secretary Mr. Hume, reached the city on Thursday from the mainland. This is Mr. Burgess' first visit to the Pacific Coast province. He spent several days in New Westminster arranging and adjusting matters in connection with the Dominion lands. In the Northwest during his stay there he visited many remote settlements of that country. For some time Mr. Burgess' health was not of the best. He met with a serious accident in the Northwest, from the effects of which he will never fully recover. Mr. Burgess occupies a very responsible position. To his care is committed the management and the shaping of the policy for the administration of the Dominion Lands in this province and in the Northwest, every detail of which he has thoroughly and efficiently mastered during the years he has acted as Deputy to Sir John Macdonald, Sir D. L. Macpherson and the Hon. Thos. White. By birth he is a Highland Scotchman; a practical printer and a journalist of marked ability, having graduated in the Highlands as well as being attached to the leading journals of Canada. In politics he was a pronounced Liberal. It was he who organized the Hansard staff. For years he was private secretary to the Hon. David Mills. His promotion to his present position was rapid, as his rare executive abilities at once made him a desirable man. With the members and others having business with the Department of the Interior like his minister—the Hon. Thomas White—he is a great favorite, his obliging, courteous disposition endearing him to every one. Plain and unostentatious in his manner he is approachable and affable to a degree. In arranging intricate matters connected with his department, on which largely depends the development of our country, he is a perfect diplomat. His visit to Victoria will extend to about a week. He and Mrs. Burgess—whom we may inform our readers, is a poetess of no mean order—are at the Driard. Both are charmed with the scenery of B. C. and with Victoria as the flower and rose city.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT AT KINGSTON.

KINGSTON, July 2.—In connection with the celebration of the Canadian federation a frightful accident occurred. While the fire-works display was in progress here last evening huge rockets were being sent off when a stick broke and the missile, with terrific force, shooting downward, struck Joseph M. Thompson, president of the Limestone Typographical Union, and almost decapitated him, the whole neck being torn away and from the explosion that followed the breast was frightfully mangled. Ten thousand spectators were horror-stricken, and dispersed. Several other persons had narrow escapes.
